| Global Education Professional Learning Network, Virginia | Diversity, equity, and inclusion is a priority for educational leaders. Generating innovative ideas has led to embracing diverse perspectives. Westcliff University established a strategic plan grounded on principles of professional learning communities, global citizenship and advocacy, expertise and depth and knowledge, culturally reflective teaching, and sustainability through continuous improvement. |
| International Conference on Society and Information Technologies (ICSIT), Orlando, FL. | Mobile learning can increase students' access to more affordable and quality college education for those living in remote and less privileged areas. Even though the instructional aspect of mobile learning has received much attention, there has been limited consideration of the assessment aspect. The purpose of this qualitative study was to explore the perceptions of college students on the utilization of mobile devices as assessment tools and the influence this has on motivation, self-efficacy, and academic performance in their learning process. This research provides knowledge that educators, curriculum designers, and administrators can utilize to create equal learning opportunities for college students to receive accessible and affordable education. |
